Guide Notes

1. The information within brackets '[]' are comments added by the guide's authors or character names obtained from dialogue within the show.
2. Character names in braces '{} ' did not appear directly in the on air credits but were obtained indirectly from TV Guide, scripts of the episodes, or where the spelling was available in the episode (e.g., Marshall spelling Syndi's name in the 1st episode, Devon Wilde's name on the gravestone, etc.).
3. Voiceovers are narration by Marshall and others.
4. The synopses are adapted from TV Guide listings.
5. Only a portion of the production credits are listed in the guide. These include the ones in the opening credits, and the ones in the closing credits up to the guest cast.
6. The introduction notation used in the episodes section of the guide is explained in the introductions section of the guide.
7. The airdates in the episodes section of the guide are for the U.S. Airdates for other countries are listed in appendix A. If anyone can supply airdates for countries not listed they will be added to the guide. Eerie has been known to air in Canada, Singapore, New Zealand, Ireland, and the U.K.
8. The date format used in the guide is month/day/year.

Introductions

Introductions of Eerie

The voiceover that Marshall uses to give an introduction of the show varies through the run of the series. For the first episode the introduction set up how Marshall came to Eerie and a little of what he found there. For the second episode it gave some more on what Marshall found in Eerie. This was shortened somewhat for the following episodes that used it. The show introductions are:

1. "To whom it may concern. If you're reading this document, it means I'm either dead — or disappeared under mysterious circumstances. My name is Marshall Teller. Not long ago I was living in New Jersey just across the river from New York City. It was crowded, polluted, and full of crime. I loved it. But my parents wanted a better life for my sister and me — so we moved to a place so wholesome, so squeaky clean, you could only find it on TV. Unfortunately, nothing could be further from the truth. Sure, my new home town looks normal enough, but look again. What's wrong with this picture? The American dream come true, right? Wrong. Nobody believes me, but this is the center of weirdness for the entire planet. Eerie, Indiana. My home sweet home. Still don't believe me? You will."
2. "Eerie, Indiana. Day 45. I knew my home town was going to be different from where I grew up in New Jersey, but this is ridiculous. Nobody believes me, but Eerie is the center of weirdness for the entire planet. Item, a guy that looks suspiciously like Elvis lives on my paper route. Item, Bigfoot eats out of my trash. Item, a bizarre housewife cult in town has been sealing up their kids in giant rubber kitchenware so they don't age. And now, just when I thought things couldn't get any worse, I discovered that in Eerie, even man's best friend is up to no good. When I try to tell this to my family, they just think I'm weird. Better weird than dead."
3. "My name is Marshall Teller. I knew my new home town was going to be different from where I grew up in New Jersey but this is ridiculous. Nobody believes me, but Eerie, Indiana is the center of weirdness for the entire planet. Item, Elvis lives on my paper route. Item, Bigfoot eats out of my trash. Item, even man's best friend is weird. Still don't believe me? You will."

Some episodes had a short setup of the episode before the title credits which is indicated with a "S". A dash "-" is used to indicate when no introduction or setup was given before the title sequence.

The title/credits montage also exists in several versions which are denoted as (1), (a1), and (a2).

In the guide which introduction and title sequence is used is given as (x.y) where x is the introduction number and y is the title sequence number.

Introductions of Characters and Places

Marshall's family

"That's my family. They're all too busy to see what's going on. Mom just started her own party planning service down at the Eerie mall. My sister Syndi is practicing for her driver's test. Personally, I don't think anybody who spells 'Cindy' S-y-n-d-i should be allowed to operate a motor vehicle. Dad works for Things, Incorporated, a product testing company. Dad's job is one of the reasons we moved here. Because — statistically speaking — Eerie is the most normal place in the entire country. Statistics lie."

Simon

"That's Simon, my next door neighbor. He's just a kid but I let him hang out because his parents don't seem to want him around. He's the only friend I've made since moving here. He's also the only one who believes me about Eerie."

The original Radford

"The World O' Stuff is run by a weird guy named Radford. Every time I saw him he was in a different disguise. I can't prove it, but I think he's in the witness protection program."

The new Radford

"The weirdest thing happened down at The World O' Stuff. It turns out the reason Radford acted so weird was because he wasn't really Radford. He was Fred Suggs, compulsive imposter. Evidently, the real Radford had been tied up in the basement the whole time."

The World O' Stuff

"In New Jersey we had the usual convenience stores. We had the Stop N' Snack, the Pig N' Go, even a Save N' Haul. But here in Eerie we've got the World O' Stuff, the place that invented one stop shopping."

Dash X

"See, three months ago, I wake up here in Weirdsville, Indiana and I don't remember anything. How I got here. Who I am. Nothing. Zip. Zero. Not even my own name." [...] "No mom. No dad. It's just me looking out for myself. I crash wherever I can and I dumpster dive for food."

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Ever since moving here, I've been convinced that something is very wrong with Eerie, Indiana. I tried telling myself there was a logical explanation for everything, but logic doesn't apply here."

Synopsis

Young Marshall Teller intends to prove that he and his family have moved to "the center of weirdness for the entire planet." He begins with a tale about odd twins whose permanently peppy mother is obsessed with selling Foreverware food-storage containers.

Notes

Date on Foreverware container which contained the baloney sandwich: 4-19-74

Foreverware song by Dean Friedman:

Foreverware, for wives and mothers everywhere
 Our goal has always been — to seal the freshness in forever
 Foreverware, for any dish that you prepare
 For each and every meal — we have the perfect deal
 The muffins that you made today will still be fresh in early May,
 Your coffee cake, your cinnamon ring will last at least until next spring
 It work on almost everything!
 Foreverware.

2. The Retainer

First aired: Sep 22, 1991 (Sunday, 7:30 PM)

Joe Dante

Co-Starring

Lou Cutell Old Man Dithers
 Lauri Hendler Fifi voice
 Aron Kincaid Fluffy voice

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Even if I tell my parents, they won't believe me. They'll just think I'm homesick, or worse yet crazy. You see, hideous pain and the fact that I'll look goofy don't have anything to do with why I don't want a retainer. It's dogs I'm worried about. It all started with a guy named Steve Konkolewski. Steve had the biggest teeth in the 7th grade. I mean we're talking major surfboards."

Synopsis

When a friend's retainer picks up strange vibrations, Marshall smells trouble, which leads him to believe that, in Eerie "man's best friend" really isn't at all.

Notes

Eerie's neighbors: (small lake) Schaefer Normal
 Comfort Eerie (highway 8)
 Correct Fickle Ordinary

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"When Dad created Mr. Wilson, the friendly automated teller machine, he had no idea what was going to happen to Eerie. Everybody's heard of the savings and loan scandal. Well what happened to my best friend Simon is even weirder."

Synopsis

An ATM machine designed by Marshall's dad becomes a personal friend of Simon, providing him with a windfall that seems to be affecting Eerie's economy.

Notes

On each side of ATM machine: Aint it good to know that you got a friend

Newspaper Marshall delivers: Eerie Examiner

The tennis shoes the older boys had were The Sky Monster while Simon's new shoes were The Sky Monster Part Two.

What Radford called himself: Rolfe Schwimmer

Simon had a 9th birthday in this episode. His birthday cake was a wedding cake inscribed: Good Luck, Julia and Kiefer

4. The Losers

First aired: Oct 6, 1991 (Sunday, 7:30 PM)

Introduction: (S:1)

Guest Starring (opening credits)

Henry Gibson {Mr. Lodgepoole}
 Dick Miller {Al}

Teleplay by
 Gary Markowitz

Story by
 Gary Markowitz & Michael R. Perry

Directed by
 Joe Dante

Co-Starring
 Russell Gannon Biker #1
 Billy Million Biker #2

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Eerie Indiana, day 94. You wouldn't believe how easy it is to lose stuff here. I mean stuff that was there a minute ago would just vanish the moment you turn your back. Gone, disappeared, lost forever. I figure, Eerie is caught in some electromagnetic vortex that messes up the tracking system we humans use to find stuff. Funny, but it seems to be hitting Dad the hardest."

Synopsis

A quest to find his father's lost briefcase leads Marshall into the very bowels of Eerie, where things have a tendency to vanish without a trace.

Notes

Name of Eerie's notorious biker gang: The Unkind Ones

The bus terminal window has the sign: Eerie Bus Terminal & Supper Club
 One of the buses has the sign "PLUNGING BUS TOURS" painted on its side.

One of the stickers on the trunk Marshall hides in is an EERIE, INDIANA logo.

Item number for Edgar Teller's lost briefcase: 779993-A-2

Graffiti in alley: GROW CORN FOREVER and [CHACA?] WAS HERE

Spotted in the Bureau of Lost:

deep sea diving suit
 life buoy marked "HMS Titanic"
 Liberty bell
 wooden sled with "Rosebud" on it
 giant pod [?] (as in Invasion of the Body Snatchers)

Lodgepoole's profession: Certified Misappropriation Engineer

The EERIE magazine Simon was holding in the laundromat is a black and white magazine put out by Warren Publishing from 1965-1983. It was famous for its bizarre stories and quality artists. The magazine can also be seen in some of the other episodes.

5. Scariest Home Videos

First aired: Oct 20, 1991 (Sunday, 7:30 PM)

Introduction: (3:a1)

Written by	Karl Schaefer
Directed by	Sam Pillsbury
Guest Starring	Tony Jay	{Mummy} {(Boris Von Orloff)}
Co-Starring	Christian Cousins	Harley [Holmes]
	Joseph Cousins	Harley [Holmes]
	Shawna Casey	Maiden
Featuring	Taylor Fry	Little Girl

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Back in Jersey Halloween was my favorite holiday. When else can a non-adult wear a disguise and roam around after dark forcing people to give you candy for no good reason and then trash their house if they don't. But here in Eerie things are different. There's no telling who or what you'll bump into around these parts. Simon and I had to be prepared for anything."

Synopsis

Simon and Marshall are cursed on Halloween by an odd occurrence involving Simon's little brother, the TV remote control, and a scary mummy movie.

Notes

The movie in the episode was: Bloody Revenge of the Mummy's Curse

Marshall's science project: studying insanity in the animal kingdom

Marshall's pet chameleons: Godzilla and Mothra

The candy the Tellers were handing out: Icky Sticky Bars

Halloween checklist with Simon and Marshall:

6. Just Say No Fun

First aired: Oct 27, 1991 (Sunday, 7:30 PM)

Introduction: (3:a1)

Written by
Michael R. Perry
Directed by
Bryan Spicer
Guest Starring
Lucy Lee Flippin	{Nurse Nancy}
Roy Brocksmith	{Principal}
Co-Starring
Raffi Di Blasio	Doug Dimsdale
Archie Hahn	Mr. Radford
Todd Jeffries	Mountie

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"A sense of humor is a sign of intelligence. That's what my Dad says. He also says sometimes Simon and I are too smart for our own good. We were just a couple of wise guys trying to have some fun. We weren't looking for trouble, but in Eerie, trouble always has a way of finding us."

Synopsis

Marshall uncovers a plot by a new school nurse, who's using an eye exam to hypnotize students to make them worker drones incapable of having fun.

Notes

The school Marshall attended was B.F. Skinner Junior High School.

On the nurse's door: "strength through eyesight"

The nurse's motto:

"A quiet classroom is an orderly classroom an orderly classroom creates better test scores"

The license plate on Tellers's car: Indiana 91 51E63K7

7. Heart on a Chain

First aired: Nov 3, 1991 (Sunday, 7:30 PM)

Introduction: (3:a1)

Written by
José Rivera
Directed by
Joe Dante
Guest Starring
Cory Danziger	{ Devon Wilde (1978-1991)}
Danielle Harris	{ Melanie } [Monroe]
Co-Starring
Jim Jansen	Melanie's Father
Sarah Lilly	Miss { Annabell } Lee
Henry Brown	Doctor
Steven Peri	Old Elvis

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Death isn't exactly something I like to think about. But ever since I lost my goldfish Nosferatu in second grade I knew death was a part of life, and part of growing up. Thing is, here in Eerie, especially in Eerie, death and life — death, love, and growing up seem to be all kind of mixed up sometimes. So it should come as no surprise that the first time I ever really kissed Melanie Monroe we were in the Eerie cemetery. Too bad we weren't alone."

Synopsis

Marshall and a friend each want to win the heart of the same girl, who has a heart condition that brings her to Eerie hoping to have a transplant.

Notes

The fish was probably named after the 1922 German film Nosferatu. It was one of the early vampire movies and was remade in 1979 as Nosferatu the Vampyre.

On the classroom blackboard:

 Todays assignment
 Romeo and Juliet
 Theme: "Love is stronger than Death"
 due Thursday

Listen closely as the camera pans past the spider web for a The Fly movie (1958 version) reference. Also look closely in the background of the last graveyard scene for a hooded Grim Reaper carrying his scythe.

{Tripp} [McConnell]

{Old Mary} {B. Carter}

Young Mary {C. Carter}

Andrea [Fantucci]

Paramedic

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"The Eerie library needed some fast cash to pay for renovations, so some of the old books that were down in the library basement got sent to the World O' Stuff and put up for sale. We're talking old books, books that haven't seen the light of day in years."

Synopsis

Marshall is love's reluctant mail carrier when the ghost of a 1920s smitten teen demands that Marshall deliver a love letter to the spirit's dreamgirl, now an elderly woman.

Notes

Simon's history paper: Jackalope and Its Relation to the Federal Deficit. (A Jackalope is a fabled half jackrabbit and half antelope creature said to have once inhabited the vast deserts of the American Southwest.)

Ages from the script for this episode:

Andrea Fantucci	15
Tripp McConnell	14
Mary Jr.	14
Old Mary	75 (1991), 13 (1929)

The address on the letter to Mary was:

Mary B. Carter
326 Elizabeth Barrett Browning Blvd.
Eerie, Indiana

Syndi was the lifestyle editor of the school newspaper and the spread she proposed to do on Tripp was: "Gypsies, Tramps, and Thieves come to Eerie."

Headline on 1920's Eerie Examiner: Hoover to Nation: Don't Worry Be Happy

This episode aired on the day part of it was to have taken place, exactly 62 years after the letter was first to be delivered.

9. Who's Who

First aired: Nov 17, 1991 (Sunday, 7:30 PM)

Introduction: (3:a1)

Written by

Co-Starring
Sean Babb	Lou Bob
Jacob Gelman	Moe Bob
Dannel Evans	Bob Bob
Stefanos Miltsakakis	Nanny Arnold
Harry Goaz	Sgt. Knight
Archie Hahn	Mr. Radford

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"The World O' Stuff was overrun by barbarians — little barbarians. If you gave these guys an island and no parents, they'd be Lord of the Flies. It was every customer for himself. Luckily I was just there to use the phone. My bike had disappeared moments before and I was calling my Mom for a ride home."

Synopsis

An artistic girl draws on Marshall's encouragement, and her sketches take on a life of their own. But seeking a perfect family, she pencils in Marilyn as her mom.

Notes

The pencil Sara Bob uses was an EERIE 2.

The facts the policeman gave about Marshall:

- The serial number of his bike was JH772347.
- He purchased the bike at Knievel Bike Shop in New Jersey.
- The time of purchase was 2:12 pm on October 10, 1986.
- He pedals an average of 12.6 miles a day.
- He has a mole on his upper left arm.

In the ending credits, all the production people are given the nickname "Bob". Also, listen for a burp at the very end of the end credits.

10. The Lost Hour

First aired: Dec 1, 1991 (Sunday, 7:00 PM)

Introduction: (3:a1)

Written by

Guest Starring
Eric Christmas {Milkman}
Nikki Cox {Janet Donner}
Featuring
Lindsey Ginter Garbage Collector

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Being 13 years old, I'd never thought much about time. I guess when you're a kid, you just figure you've got plenty of time to think about it later. Well, here in Eerie, nothing could be further from the truth."

Synopsis

Marshall needs to be saved from daylight saving time (which isn't in effect in Eerie) after he resets his time and falls into a dimension always one hour behind.

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"It's easy to believe almost anything when you consider just how big the universe is. It's even easier to believe the unbelievable here in my little corner of the universe. That's why when Professor Nigel Zircon rolled into town with his traveling museum of the parabelievable, Simon and I were the first in line."

Synopsis

Marshall and Simon think they've finally found someone who will believe them — a traveling professor of the "parabelievable" — but should they be believing him?

Notes

Edgar Teller interned at the Smithsonian Institute before entering Syracuse to do his undergraduate work in archeology. He received a NASA scholarship to MIT where his thesis was titled: "Matter: What is it Exactly?"

The t-shirts being sold had on them: "I have been to Eerie and seen the space thing."

Live TV Newscast was on WERD-TV

Professor Zircon's real name is Phil Zirconowitz.

12. Tornado Days

OLD BOB	As Himself

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Back in New Jersey we had blizzards, the occasional hurricane, but it was Equal Opportunity weather. It went after everybody. But here in Eerie, Indiana, I couldn't help feeling that bad weather was after me personally. Especially tornados. Tornados are 200 mile an hour windstorms with minds of their own. But here in Eerie, instead of taking shelter in their basements, people celebrated something called Tornado Day."

Synopsis

Matt Frewer drops in as a wacky meteorologist whom Marshall helps battle Tornado Bob during its annual visit to Eerie, which the town celebrates on Tornado Day.

Notes

This episode was day 139.

Marshall and Simon were watching "Commando Cody" on TV.

Howard Raymer worked for N.O.A.A. (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration) as a meteorologist. His capsule was called the Tornado Rider.

Syndi was Miss Tornado Days.

The prizes for the 87th annual Tornado Day sweepstakes were:

Grand prize: Windmaster travel trailer no. 01313

Second prize: 3-day all-expense-paid trip to Eerie's sister city, Normal, Illinois.

Simon's sweepstakes ticket was 103. He wrote "Hasta La Vista BigBob" on the travel trailer.

The street sign was Maple St. and 13th Ave.

For sale in the store were Mini Bobs fans.

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"It seems like every town has a haunted house and a creepy story that goes with it. Kids all dare each other to go inside, but nobody ever does, because a friend-of-a-friend knows a guy that went in — and never came out. Every town has one, but here in Eerie, Simon and I have counted over 50 haunted structures. Today we were checking out number 51."

Synopsis

Marshall and Simon are startled by a creepy kid who's crashed in an old mill that's haunted by the ghost of Eerie's worst bank robber ever.

Notes

This was the episode where the Dash X character first appeared. He did not have a name at first but was most commonly called Kid With the Grey Hair. Some of the other things people called him include Kid With No Name, and Sneaky Kid With the Hair. This was also the episode where the new Radford character entered.

The mill was called the Hitchcock Mill.

Grungy Bill's gun was "Betsy"

Some things in World O' Stuff:

Deep sea diving suit

Giant Foreverware container holding regular sized Foreverware containers with sign: ForeverWare 50% Off

There are apparently a number of different versions of the Black Cow drink Marshall and Simon ordered. One from the Complete World Bartender's Guide says to pour 8 oz. sarsaparilla into a tall glass. Add 2 oz. vanilla ice cream and stir until well-blended. Sarsaparilla is a soft drink flavored with the dried roots of a tropical American plant (smilax). Some folks in the rec.foods.cooking notes group said it is a drink consisting of root beer with vanilla ice cream. Others said it is a drink made of root beer and milk.

Also mentioned in the notes group were similar drinks including a Brown Cow made with vanilla ice cream and Coca Cola®, a Red Angus made with vanilla ice cream and Birch Beer, and a Purple Cow made with strawberry ice cream topped off by Black Cherry soda.

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"I wasn't the only one who thought this Harvest King hoopla was for the birds. I hadn't seen that weird kid with the grey hair since our little adventure with the ghost of Grungy Bill. I could tell he wasn't somebody to mess with. It seems we were the only two guys not buying lottery tickets. Why — did he know something I didn't? The Harvest King gets all sorts of dorky prizes, but then he must go out into the woods during a full moon until he catches a glimpse of the mysterious Eerie Wolf. What I wanted to know was — how come there's no such thing as an ex-Harvest King?"

Synopsis

Trickery makes Marshall the new Harvest King, and he finds the king's traditional task no treat: he must venture to see the Eerie Wolf, which turns out to be a werewolf.

Notes

If the harvest king sees the Eerie Wolf, Eerie gets a big harvest, 13 years of good luck, and low taxes.

The Howling was being shown on cable.

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Simon and I have decided to make a rare appearance with the family, stuffing ourselves at the Dragon of the Black Pool Chinese restaurant. It's a place where the egg rolls aren't too shabby, and the fortune cookies are the kind you can only find in Eerie."

Synopsis

Marshall and Simon must really use their heads to crack open the real story behind a homeless man who seems to have lost his mind.

Notes

The soap playing on TV was "Todd and Donna".

The envelope from Furnell was addressed as:

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Sometimes it gets tough battling the forces of Eerie by myself, even with a little help from Simon, but I always thought I could count on Mom and Dad for a dose of normality. But then Dad joined The Loyal Order of Corn, Eerie's version of the Moose Lodge, and started spending all his free time there which drove Mom crazy. I'd never even noticed the place. It kind of makes me wonder what else I haven't noticed."

Synopsis

Something very strange pops up when Simon, Dash, and Marshall try to crack the inner sanctum of Eerie's odd and exclusive lodge.

Notes

The script for this episode lists it taking place on day 323.

Grades of the Loyal Order of Corn: seedlings, knee-highs, and third-degree ears

The Loyal Order of Corn supreme attributes: patience, fortitude, persistence, loyalty, silence, strength, and loyalty (a double supreme attribute)

"Hail to Thee, O Ears of Splendor" by Dean Friedman:

Hail to Thee, O Ears of Splendor,

Joyously we pledge our job

We declare our staunch allegiance to protect your kingly cob.

With fidelity and devotion

and every day from dawn to dusk,

We will never shuck our duty,

we'll defend your noble husk.

Yea, we vow, our dear lodge brothers,

when 'er in need down through the years,

When there's trouble by the bushel

we will always lend an ear.

For from each teeny tiny kernel,
another Eerie ear is born,
There sprouts a Hardy sturdy stalk,
the Loyal Order of Corn.

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Credit is weird. People love to buy stuff with it, especially stuff they don't need. But when it comes time to pay they'll do anything not to. Especially if they're broke — like me."

Synopsis

Rene Auberjonois plays the Donald, a PR wiz who puts Eerie into a shopping spree at World O' Stuff, with E-Z credit — except for the fine print.

Notes

Kit Marshall bought: Disguise yourself so even your own mother won't recognize you

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Eerie Indiana, day 0. When you're 13 going on family outings is about as cool as getting caught still sleeping with Mr. Blanky." [a little bit later] "I don't have a dog named Toto. But if I did right about now I'd be telling him — Toto, I don't think we're in Indiana any more."

Synopsis

After finding a TV script in his mailbox, Marshall finds himself in Hollywood, his family out of character and his name "Omri" — who's destined to die in the script.

Notes

The movie the family and Simon were going to was called Revenge of the Corn Critters.

The cart Dash X and Justin drive around in has the Eerie logo on the hood and "CORNMOBILE" on the side.

The Tellers drive a Volvo 240 DL. The license plate is: Indiana 92 28R86K4.

The revision date on the script seen in the episode was 4/12/92. The date on the clap board was 4/21/92 and listed it as scene 99 take 13.

Initial episode introduction by Marshall

"Back in Jersey, the Pit Bull Surfers were real popular with all the metalheads. I like 'em 'cause they're so dumb. Well, one day they finally hit Eerie. Unfortunately, they hit my friend Tod McNulty the hardest. His family lost their farm about a year ago and his Dad was still out of work." [...] "I thought a little mindless headbanging music would cheer him up, maybe change his outlook. I was only too right."

Synopsis

Marshall frets over a buddy who gets heavily into a heavy-metal music band as a release from a father who continually berates him. The father claims that the music has corrupted his son, turning him into a noxious metal fiend.

Notes

This episode was originally scheduled for Sunday, October 13, 1991 at 7:30 PM but did not air. It was never rescheduled by NBC so was not shown in the U.S. until Disney ran the series.

Syndi's full name is Syndi Marie Priscilla Teller

Tod quotes from Eardrum Lobotomy by the Pit Bull Surfers.
Simon quotes from We've Only Just Begun by the Carpenters.

On Bench: Eerie Bait Shop and Sushi Bar: 555-8888

U.K. Broadcast Order

Eerie was broadcast in the U.K. on Channel 4 approximately between 6:30pm and 7pm. The audience ratings in the U.K are given in millions of viewers. These place most episodes in the 20's when ranked against other shows on this channel. Since Channel 4 has a lower market share compared to some of the other U.K. channels the show would probably be ranked about 200 against all shows on the U.K. channels.

Appendix E - Commercial Voiceovers

Voiceovers by Marshall and others going to a commercial:

"If Eerie's not back after these commercials, alert the people at the network."
"Eerie, Indiana will be right back. I hope."
"I predict... a commercial!"
"Shhh! It's our sponsors." [whispered]
"I'll be right back. Don't you get lost, just yet."
"It'll get even more eerie after these words from our sponsors."
"Eerie, Indiana will be right back."
"If we're not back after these commercials, alert the people at the network."
"We'll be right back. I hope."
"It gets even weirder after this commercial break."
"There's no telling what will happen after these commercial messages."
"Ya know - it's the commercials that make this business so rewarding."
"I laughed. I cried. I went to a commercial."
"And now a word from our sponsors."

Voiceovers by Marshall and others on returning from a commercial:

"Now back to the program"
"We now return to Weirdness Central."
"We now return to Eerie, Indiana."
"Now back to Eerie, Indiana."

Teaser before the end credits of Marshall's Theory of Believability

Marshall: "Hi, while we're searching for proof that Eerie Indiana is weird, some of you have been searching for proof that we're still on the air."
Simon: "We're not dead yet."
Radford: "Not even close. 'Eerie Indiana' returns Sunday March 1st with all new episodes."
Marshall: "Oh, no. You live here now?"
Radford: "You might say I've always been in the neighborhood, and you thought it couldn't get any weirder."
